MacDougall Awards presented May 7

Nanette Fabray filled her night off from the theatre with congratulations delivered personally to the winners of this year's MacDougall Creative Writing Awards. She came to town to appear in "Cactus Flower" through May 27 at the Hayloft Dinner Theatre in Manassas. But she spent Monday night, May 7, encouraging young deaf writers to polish their writing skills, to read more, and, above all, to communicate.

She and her son Jamie MacDougall, along with the Writers Guild Foundation, established the Awards at Gallaudet in 1979 to honor the memory of her late husband, Randy, who was a well-known script writer in Hollywood. He dreamed of encouraging hearing impaired students to improve their skills and to seek careers as writers.

At the dinner honoring the winners of the Awards, Fabray told the story of the first time Randy MacDougall sold something he had written. He was paid five dollars for a joke. He was so pleased to be paid for having written 20 words, she recalled, that he decided on the spot to become a writer.

Fabray suggested that eventually the work of the winners of the MacDougall Creative Writing Awards should be bound in a special collection. Thinking aloud, she said she would even pay for it, if necessary. "What have I done!" she laughingly exclaimed immediately after her offer.

According to John Canney, coordinator of the contest, the judges found the quality of the entries from this year's 27 contestants to be so high that they decided to honor six students. Richard Frantz, a senior from Kansas majoring in English, received the first prize; Jamie McNamara, a senior social work major from Michigan, won second; and Tom Price, a sophomore from Georgia, came in third. Junior Lai Yok Ho from Singapore, sophomore Melanie Wilding from Utah and junior Thomas Brislin from Pennsylvania each received honorable mention.

Columnist Hal Gould ("Hal's Hunches") returned this year to serve for the third time as the professional journalist among the judges. Gallaudet faculty members Doug Miller and Will Madsen and Mary Johnstone, winner of the first prize in the 1982 MacDougall Creative Writing Awards, completed the judging committee.

Board of Trustees approves policy on interpreting services

As a means of setting a general standard for interpreting services on campus, the Board of Trustees at its March meeting approved a policy that requires interpreters to follow the simultaneous method of communication.

Under the new policy, interpreters are required to use voice-to-sign transliteration—that is, the interpreter will change only the mode of the speaker's message, presenting what is being said by using signs, fingerspelling and appropriate lip movements following the word order used by the speaker.

For sign-to-voice transliteration, the policy requires the interpreter to interpret a deaf person's mode from visual form into spoken English. For example, the intent is that, if someone is signing in American Sign Language, the interpreter will voice standard English.

The policy, which went into effect immediately, affects faculty, staff and students in all offices and divisions of the College.

Congressman Bonior to speak at Gallaudet's 120th Commencement

More than 250 graduates will receive diplomas next Monday at Gallaudet's 120th Commencement. Scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m., Commencement exercises will be held at the Field House.

The College expects to confer 256 degrees: 145 bachelor's degrees, 101 master's degrees, one doctoral degree and nine associate of arts degrees.

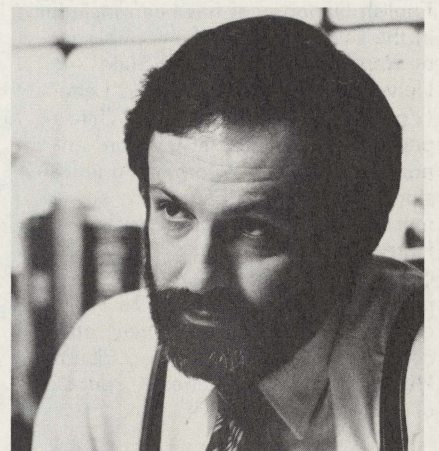

Congressman David Bonior (D-MI), a member of the College's Board of Trustees, will give this year's Commencement address. Bonior, who was first elected to Congress in 1976, has served on the Board of Trustees since 1979. He has spearheaded the effort in Congress to restore funds to the fiscal year 1985 operating budget of MSSD and KDES.

Bonior, who has a bachelor's degree from the University of Iowa and a master's degree from Chapman College, serves on the House Rules Committee. He will be the sole recipient this year of an honorary doctorate from the College.

Following Commencement, the College and the Alumni Association will present the first Gallaudet Journalism Award to Teresa Hoffman Greenley, a reporter with the Pensacola News in Pensacola, FL. She won for her series on deafness entitled "A Sign of Independence." The award will be presented during a luncheon at "Ole Jim" hosted by Interim President Jerry Lee for the Board and special guests of the College.

A dean's reception for graduates, their families and faculty members will be held Sunday, May 20 from 1 to 2 p.m. at Ely Center; and from 3:30 to 7 p.m. the Graduate School awards ceremony will be held at Elstad Auditorium. A reception will follow in the upper level lounge of the Learning Center.

Graduates and faculty members should pick up academic regalia in the College bookstore Friday, May 18 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Anyone unable to pick up regalia Friday should do so on

David Bonior

Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. or Monday after 9 a.m. in the bookstore.

On Monday, May 21, a breakfast will be served for graduates, their families and faculty in the College dining room. The breakfast will begin at 9 a.m. Faculty and staff members can pick up breakfast tickets in the appropriate dean's office.

Faculty and graduates will assemble on the first floor of Hall Memorial Building. In case of inclement weather, they will assemble in the basement of the Field House. The College president and dignitaries will assemble in the dual classroom, on the south side of the Field House.

College awards honor faculty, staff and students

Outstanding faculty, staff and students were recognized for leadership and academic excellence at Gallaudet's Awards Night held at the Elstad Auditorium on May 4. A reception followed in the Ely Center atrium.

Missing from this year's awards was the annual dedication of the Tower Clock yearbook. The Tower Clock staff could not decide in time for the awards presentation to whom the yearbook will be dedicated.

The Alpha Sigma Pi Fraternity presented its Man of the Year Award to Interim President Jerry Lee. The fraternity's Mother of the Year Award went to Karen Cook, coordinator of Residence Education in Student Affairs, and the Teacher of the Year Award was presented to Leon Auerbach, mathematics professor.

Catherine Ingold, director of the Honors Program received the Chi Omega Psi Sorority's Woman of the Year Award. The sorority presented its Bill McCrone, associate professor of Counseling, addressed the National Literary Society April 27 on "School and Rehabilitation Programs with Deaf Japanese People." On April 30, he addressed the Western Maryland College deaf education students on "Basic Counseling Skills for Teachers Serving Deaf Students." On April 16, he conducted a reality therapy workshop for house-parents at the Michigan School for the Deaf. The workshop was sponsored by Pre-College Outreach Programs.

A paper given by Bruce White of the English Department has been included in the selected proceedings published by Rendezvous, the Idaho State University Journal of Arts and Letters (Vol. 19, No. 1, Fall 1983). White's paper was presented at the third annual University of Wyoming American studies conference. During the summer, he will be writing an article on Harriet Martineau for the "Encyclopedia of Deaf People and Deafness," completing an index of the first 16 volumes of Victorian Periodicals Review, and completing his dissertation on Elbert Hubbard's "The Philistine: A Periodical of Protest" (1895-1915).

John Schuchman and John Van Cleve of the History Department participated in a session of the 77th annual meeting of the Organization of American Historians. The meeting was held last month in Los Angeles, CA. Schuchman delivered a paper entitled "Oral History Interviews with Deaf Individuals" while Van Cleve presided at the session and provided a comment following presentation of the three papers. The session, "Deaf Americans: History of a Forgotten Minority," was an attempt to interest the historical profession in deaf studies. It was attended by professional historians, deaf people from Los Angeles area and students from California State University, Northridge.

Charlotte Baker-Shenk, a member of the Linguistics Research Lab at Gallaudet's Research Institute, spoke before the Washington Linguistic Society on Jan. 26. Her talk was entitled "Facial Signals in American Sign Language."

Five members of the Math Department attended the annual meeting of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics April 25-28 in San Francisco, CA. Rudy Hines, Ray Kolander, Vicki Kemp, Bob Bergan and Florence Vold attended a variety of workshops and lectures. They also spent a great deal of time at the meeting looking at possible textbooks for both the Northwest and Kendall Green campuses.

Nancy Fones, assistant principal at MSSD, received an award from the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development during its annual competition to identify the best doctoral dissertations in three areas: curriculum, instruction and supervision. Fones won this year's award in the supervision category. Her dissertation was entitled "Personnel Evaluation Through Training" in the School of Education and Human Services Department of Administration.

Faculty elects members to committees

The collegiate faculty has elected new members to its standing committees. Members serve for two-year term.

Four new members were elected to the seven-member Graduate Council. They are James Mashie of Audiology, Ronald Nomeland of Educational Technology, Lottie Riekehof of Sign Communication and Frank Zieziula of Counseling.

Four members were elected to Committee A on Faculty Welfare. They are King Jordan of Psychology, BetteJane Martin of English, Richard Meisegeier of Sociology and Social Work and Harvey Goodstein of Mathematics. The full committee has seven members.

Four members were elected to Committee B on Curriculum. Janet Pray and David Snyder were elected from the School of Arts and Sciences and Catherine Andersen and Mary Anne Royster from the School of Communication. The full committee has nine members.

Three members were elected to the 11-member Committee C on Faculty/Student Affairs. They are Walter Trafton of the School of Arts and Sciences, Kathryn Baldrige of Education and Human Services and Victoria Brown-Clayman of Theatre Arts.

Brown-Clayman was elected as member-at-large.

Three members were elected to Committee D on Nominations, Academic Discipline and Grievances. They are Robert Jackson of Physical Education, Douglas J. Miller of English and Robert Williams of Psychology. There are five members on the full committee.

Two new members were elected to the seven-member Committee S on Continuing Self-Evaluation. They are Kurt Beermann of History and Carol LaSasso of Education.

New members elected to the Prep Committee are Felicia Alexander, Harry Markowicz and Frances Harris, who teach Prep English, and Carol Garretson of Communication Arts. There are seven members on the committee.

The first members of the new committee on Compensation are Yerker Andersson of Sociology and Social Work, Charles Giansanti of Chemistry, William Varrieur of Business Administration and Diane O'Connor and Bruce White of English.

The collegiate faculty voted to recommend Roger Beach of Counseling and Vicki Kemp of Mathematics for seats on the seven-member Simultaneous Communication Evaluation Panel. Vice President for Academic Affairs John Schuchman appoints the final committee.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer-education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College receive substantial financial support from the Department of Education.

College implements interpreter policy

(DRCC) approached former President Edward C. Merrill, Jr. about implementing a policy concerning interpreting services on campus. Tweedie said that advice from various groups and individuals on campus resulted in numerous drafts before the present policy was presented to the Board.

"It is an attempt by the College to reinforce the English language environment we are preparing people to live and work in," Tweedie explained.

DRCC Chairman Harvey Goodstein said he thought that Gallaudet should have a policy on interpreting. He cautioned, however, that any policy without flexibility was not going to work.

"The policy takes the stand that Gallaudet is a SimCom institution," commented Paula Ottinger, head of the Department of Interpreter-Transliterator Instruction.

Though Ottinger said she was unsure as to what the policy means in terms of actual implementation concerning the use of ASL, she said it would have no bearing on what is taught in the Department of Interpreter-Transliterator Instruction. She described that program as a "generalist training program" that includes ASL, Pidgin Signed English and English. Its goals are not determined by Gallaudet's internal policy since it does not train interpreters/translilitators solely for Gallaudet.

According to John Schuchman, vice president for Academic Affairs, the policy can be revised if necessary. Amendments to the policy, he said, could be made at any time.

The policy

Gallaudet College exists primarily to offer educational programs to hearing impaired individuals. Due to the unique needs of this population, communication policies have been developed for each of the two main divisions of Gallaudet, the Pre-College (KDES and MSSD) and the College. Each of the schools within these two divisions has developed its communication policies in order to have an agreed upon standard of communication for both faculty and students alike.

However, since there are legitimate situations in which members of the faculty and staff must conduct their business with those not yet judged as competent, or find themselves interacting with persons not familiar with the use of sign language or the simultaneous method (i.e., with off campus visitors) the use of interpreters by Gallaudet faculty, staff and students is frequently appropriate.

In order to aid those persons involved in requiring the assistance of a sign language interpreter, the Gallaudet Interpreting Services has been established. This service consists of highly skilled interpreters who as full-time staff members or "free lance" contractors with the College may provide interpreting in a variety of settings. The settings include (for illustration):

I. Meetings involving both deaf and hearing participants when any member of the group has not been judged competent in communication by his respective faculty or, if staff, has not attained a level of fluency appropriate to fully participate in the meeting.

II. Lectures provided to the Gallaudet community in which it is likely that the speaker will not use the simultaneous method himself or will use media appropriate to and needing sign interpretation.

III. When students or faculty/staff who are hearing impaired must attend activities off the Gallaudet Campus that are associated with their education (i.e., consortium courses) or professional responsibilities (i.e., attendance at a convention or lecture at another university).

IV. Occasionally, also, it may be deemed necessary to insure the "ease of communication" in a meeting by providing parallel interpreting while participants are using the simultaneous method.

As a general guide, instructors and students participating in a class should not normally function as interpreters. Also, individuals actively participating in a meeting should not be asked to serve as interpreters during the meeting. Occasionally, however, it may become necessary due to unique circumstances that a competent simultaneous communicator may be requested to assist for brief periods of time.

The policy of Gallaudet College is that all communication between faculty, staff and students related to instructional or educational activity is "through the simultaneous method using the spoken word, the language of signs and fingerspelling." Therefore, the standard for all GIS voice-to-sign transliteration assignments should be a presentation in the word order used by the speaker utilizing signs, fingerspelling and appropriate lip movements which convey the speaker's language.

For sign-to-voice transliteration when a deaf person presents and uses an interpreter to verbally express his/her message into spoken English, the transliterator's responsibility will be to change the speaker's mode from visual form into spoken English.

Procedure:

The process for solicitation of competent sign language interpreters is through the Gallaudet Interpreting Services in the School of Communication. Guidelines for the use of this service are prepared and revised annually and should be obtained from the GIS coordinator.

The Student Body Government's Faculty-Staff Member of the Year Award went to Steven Weiner, assistant to the dean for Student Relations in the Office of Student Affairs. The Oriental Club presented an award to Toni Rees, coordinator of International Student Services in the Office of Student Affairs.

The Visual Media Department held a meeting May 3 at Dawes House, in part to help celebrate the graduation of the first three Visual Arts majors at Gallaudet. The program was established on campus two years ago. Other programs with first-time graduates are Computer Science, Recreation and Leisure Studies and the Honors Program.

Hearing impairment topic of talk show

Hearing impairment was the topic of conversation during a recent showing of the local television program, "Morning Break."

The program, which aired May 2, featured a discussion by a panel consisting of David Tweedie, dean of the School of Communication at Gallaudet, Richard Stoker, assistant professor of Communication Disorders at Pennsylvania State University, Sarina Roffe, a cued speech interpreter for the Montgomery County school system whose 8-year-old son is profoundly deaf, and actresses Nanette Fabray and Phyllis Diller. Diller is national chairperson of the Council for Better Hearing and Speech Month program this year. Fabray, a long-time friend of Gallaudet and an advocate for deaf persons, served in that capacity in 1982.

At the beginning of the one-hour program, Diller and Fabray discussed with hostess Carol Randolph their personal experiences with hearing loss. Fabray's hearing loss started when she was 12 and progressed while Diller suffered from sudden hearing loss. Her hearing was eventually restored with medical therapy while Fabray's hearing problem was corrected by surgery.

When questioned about the sign language versus oralism debate in the deaf community, both Tweedie and Stoker, who is deaf and lipreads and uses his voice, responded that each individual should use the communication method that works best for him or her.

The program was timed to coincide with Better Hearing and Speech Month, the public education effort promoting hope and help for persons with hearing and speech problems.

Five-year-old Mary Frances "Muffy" Silvestri of Danbury, CT, poster child for Better Hearing and Speech Month, was introduced during the program, which concluded with four students from Sandy Spring Friends School in Olney, MD, signing the song, "The Sounds of Silence." The eighth graders are studying sign language in school.

The cast from MSSD's production of "Godspell" gave the lunchtime crowd at "Ole Jim" a preview of some scenes from the play May 2. The production will continue through May 19, with remaining shows scheduled for May 16, 17, 18 and 19. Evening performances begin at 8 and on May 16, there will be a 10 a.m. matinee.

Informational sessions scheduled

On Tuesday, May 15 and Wednesday, May 16, the Personnel Office will sponsor informational sessions on the 403 (b) Tax Sheltered Annuity/Investment Program available to all permanent employees and extended temporary employees with more than one year of service.

The 403 (b) program enables all eligible employees to defer a portion of their salaries before taxes into a choice of annuity or investment plans. The money deposited is exempt from federal and local taxes and the growth or interest earned on the invested funds is likewise deferred until the money is withdrawn (usually at retirement). Gallaudet currently provides a selection of more than 25 plans or options from 10 companies.

The informational sessions will be held in the multipurpose room of Ely Center. They will feature an overview of the 403 (b) program, followed by a brief summary and question and answer period conducted by David H. Hofstad, a certified financial planner and certified public accountant.

The overview of the 403 (b) program will be presented Tuesday, May 15 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., with presentations scheduled for 10:15 a.m., 11:15 a.m., 12:15 p.m. and 1:15 p.m.

On Wednesday, May 16, employees will have an opportunity to meet individually with plan representatives from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Representatives will attend from the following plans: Oppenheimer, Templeton, Mutual of New York, Security First, New York Life, First Investors, Pioneer and Valic.

An updated 403 (b) packet with a general summary and comparative information on the plans offered through Gallaudet will be available at the sessions. For more information, contact Kayt Lewis at x5113.

Creative writing contest set this fall

The Gallaudet English Department will hold the Lillian Gourley Rakow Creative Writing Contest this coming fall. Lillian Gourley Rakow, a 1928 graduate of Gallaudet, was very active for many years in deaf education in New York. She worked as a librarian and was also a published writer.

In honor of his wife, Jules Pierre Rakow established this creative writing award for Gallaudet students.

Awards for the contest will be divided into the following categories: Senior winner, $1,500; junior winner, $750; and sophomore winner, $500.

Writers entering the contest will submit a portfolio, a collection of their writing, in the form of stories, poetry, essays and plays. All entries must be typed, double-spaced on one side of the page without a name. The English Department will give each writer a number.

All writing must be the student's original work.

Works which have won previous awards may not be submitted for competition in this contest. The collection of works should be no less than 10 pages and no more than 50 pages.

The deadline for submission is noon, Friday, Nov. 2. Writers should submit their works to the English Department, Room 211, Hall Memorial Building. For more information, contact Doug Miller, HMB 206.

General campus announcements

• Friday, May 18 marks the last day lunch will be served in "Ole Jim" until the fall when service will resume. "Ole Jim" will continue to be available for catered lunches, lunch meetings, etc., after this time. To make such arrangements, contact Mary Anne Pugin at x5277 (voice) or x5105 (TDD).

Happy Hour will continue throughout the summer at "Ole Jim" every Thursday and Friday from 4 to 7 p.m.

• The D.C. Chapter of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association is sponsoring a fund-raising Sign-A-Thon at Columbia Mall in Columbia, MD, Saturday, May 26 from 10 a.m.

to 5 p.m. Members of the deaf community will be featured performing skits, songs, mime and telling stories.

The event will serve as both a deaf awareness project and a fund-raiser. The chapter will donate proceeds to worthy causes.

The chapter will also have a booth at the mall to sell arts and crafts and baked goods. Members of the deaf community are asked to donate baked goods or arts and crafts. Anyone interested in performing or assisting in some way should contact Hilary Ainbender, chairperson for the event. She can be reached at home after 6 p.m. at 890-3712 (TDD) or at the Northwest Campus at 7-5883.

Class of 1934 reunion set May 19-21

The Gallaudet College Class of 1934 will hold a fiftieth year reunion at Kendall Green during Commencement weekend, May 19-21.

Planned activities include a golden anniversary brunch in "Ole Jim," a reception and possibly a tour of the Northwest Campus. Approximately 10 members of the Class of 1934 have indicated that they will attend the reunion, during which time they will attend Commencement exercises.

For more information about the reunion, contact Mary Anne Pugin at x5105 (TDD).
